Did you know?

If you are one of our Hosted Clients, no need to read further, if not please read on for an important deadline.

Beginning January 1, 2017, we will no longer support Windows XP or Vista. I have written a couple of articles in previous newsletters about the security threat XP poses and the need to upgrade. We have now added Vista to the mix. Our September update will include a process that will review the current Windows version running on any machine accessing Unity in your office. If XP or Vista is detected, you will receive the following message; "You are currently running Microsoft XP (Vista). On January 1, 2017, Credex will no longer be able to support systems on XP (Vista), and Unity may not operate. Please contact Client Support (800 951-2015) for additional instructions." (Message will reflect the operating system you are currently running)

After January 1st, Unity may still operate on an XP or Vista machine, but any updates will not be tested in the XP or Vista environment and Client Support will not be able to assist when issues arise.

It is imperative that any XP or Vista machine be upgraded to at least Windows 7 Pro in order to ensure you continue to enjoy the latest Unity features and upgrades.

Until next month,
Michael
